Excerpt: . / I chapter V. the spread of the movement. Once by the river side A little fountain rose; Now like the Severn s seaward tide Round the broad world it flows. --J. Montgomery. it was not till November 3rd, 1783, or more than three years after the commencement of his first school, that Raikes made the Sundayschool system public in the columns of his newspaper. He did so without any mention of his own name, and without in any way attempting to claim credit for his share in the movement. This is a significant fact, which seems to have been overlooked by those who would attempt to represent him as vain-glorious and fond of praise. Considering the part which he had taken in the establishment of Sunday-schools, he could scarcely have announced the scheme in more modest terms than he did. His words were as follows: -- Some of the clergy in different parts of this county, bent upon attempting a reform among the children of the lower class, are establishing Sunday schools, for rendering the Lord s day subservient to the ends of instruction, which has hitherto been prostituted to bad purposes. Farmers, and other inhabitants of the towns and villages, complain that they receive more injury to their property an the Sabbath than all the week besides: this, in a great measure, proceeds from the lawless state of the younger class, who are allowed to run wild on that day, free...
