Back in 1600, do you know which country had the most firearms in the world? The answer is Japan. Firearms were introduced to Japan in 1543. Since then, over a decade, Japan had produced and possessed a hundred thousand firearms, according to a report of the Society of Jesus that had propagated Christianity in Japan in those days. In addition, around 1600, it is considered that the country possessed more than half a million firearms that accounted for half of all the firearms in the world. In Shogun, a novel by James Clavell and broadcasted as a TV drama, as well as in The Last Samurai, a film starring Tom Cruise, Japan was described as if there had been almost no firearms and the country had attacked with only bows and arrows and swords around that time. However, it is completely wrong because, as stated above, Japan was the world's top possessor of firearms in that time. After the year 1600 in which the novel is set, the long civil war in Japan ended in the early 17th century. Then, the government established a strict arms control policy and restricted the production of firearms. Since the 17th century, firearm craftsmen had lost their jobs and started to make mechanical robots instead of the weapons. That would be the beginning of the machine industry in Japan. By the way, currently guns have been strictly controlled in Japan and laws require all gun owners to possess a license. To be licensed, gun owners must meet the following requirements: having a right purpose to use guns such as competition or hunting, attending a lecture...
