Createspace, United States, 2012. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 203 x 133 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Set in the 1960s, Daphne Carter is a vivacious, witty, wealthy twenty-year-old with a social conscience and a glamorous job in the Kennedy White House. She has everything going for her -- until she doesn't. Ernest Kolowrat was born in Prague in 1935. After attending schools in the former Czechoslovakia, Turkey and England, he graduated from Yale and served as a junior naval reserve officer with the U. S. Pacific Fleet. During the decade of the 1960s, he was successively employed as world affairs editor for Scholastic Magazines in New York, director of information for the American Institute for Foreign Study in Greenwich, Connecticut, and director of 10th Anniversary Programs of the Peace Corps in Washington. Since 1971, he has been a freelance writer, publicist and filmmaker. He is the author of Hotchkiss: A Chronicle of an American School. Ernest Kolowrat has written a tender, haunting love story set in a long-ago world that was really only yesterday. --Stephen Birmingham, Author Our Crowd A perceptive story of a courageous girl with insightful nuances of social conventions of the upper classes in America in a different era. Edith Wharton for the mid-twentieth century. --Peter Tcherepnine on From beginning of Part II: Glancing through the gossip columns in the New York Journal American for familiar names, I came across the following item: Washington socialite Daphne Carter is now out of danger, we are told by friends who ought to know, following her automobile mishap on Virginia's back roads last week. We wish you speedy recovery, Daphne. It was an unusually warm spring day. Intent on acquiring an early tan, I was lounging with the afternoon paper on a...
